"INSTITUTIONAL STRENGTHENING"

Ladies Healthy political life demands from healthy and independent institutions to guarantee social harmony and real democracy away from partisanship. Unfortunately, we have been living a debasement of the system, hardly noticing it. Power has become more and more powerful, excluding or controlling the counterbalances existing till now. The result is a society democratically poorer, legal insecurity and increase in costs.

Economic area.

- Reinforce the independence of the Banco de España, armoring the inspectors and publishing the reports.
- Reduce dependence of the large public sector firms with professional and independent regulatory bodies.
- Reinforce the National Competition Commission to avoid abuse of dominant positions and anti-competitive practices.

Legal area.

- Recover the legal power for judges, allowing people not linked to any legal association (around 50%) voting for anyone (members or not members).
- Independence of the Constitutional Court, valuing its competences and avoiding to amend the Supreme Court. ¿Organ of constitutional control of the Supreme Court?

Professional area.

- Invigorate professional colleges by appealing offers for the members who compensate their affiliation.
- Democratic guarantees inside the governing bodies of the colleges.

- That would give economic independence and therefore, independence of the government.

Institutional area.

- Revalue the Council of State: open doors, explaining videos, etc.
- Depoliticise the Court of Auditors and spread the reports of the auditors without passing through the filter of the advisors.
- Armed Forces. Appointment and dismissals of Generals decided by the military leadership, as in U.S.A.
- University: Debureaucratisation of the University, to allow it to become the think tank of society, as it should be.

Means.

- Professionalize criteria to grant TV and radio licenses, to avoid arbitrariness.
- Prohibit press conferences without questions

Obviously, all that demands from everyone to assume their institutional responsibilities, that's to say, a change in values in a way that everyone assumes seriously the liabilities derived from their position.
